Aims to help those most in need – regardless of national, religious and political ideologies.

Caritas Macedonia's humanitarian assistance has provided vital relief items such as food, clothing and medical assistance to the most vulnerable groups of people. Caritas Macedonia programme helps poor families who either have no income or their social assistance is 30-50 euros a month; provisions that include the basic necessities of food, clothing and medicine.

A major aspect of the work of Caritas Macedonia is a 9 month education project for 170 Roma children, women and girls, so that they can learn to speak and write the Macedonia language, which is a requirement for entering primary education.

The National Office of Caritas Macedonia is located in Skopje and has Caritas parishes in all parts of the country. The local bishop serves as President while the organisational work is entrusted to the Director. The Caritas parishes are led by the parish priest and volunteers help carry out their humanitarian mission

Caritas Mali's areas of intervention include: charitable and emergency humanitarian assistance initiatives; food security via promotion of grain storage warehouses; environmental protection, accompaniment of farmers' organisations, rural extension, natural resource management; and awareness-raising and facilitation relating to health and sanitation.

Regarding local economic development, Caritas Mali provides credit unions and supports income-generating activities and local initiatives. On the healthcare front, Caritas supports community health services, strengthens infrastructure and combats HIV/AIDS.

Caritas Mali also works for the promotion of women by encouraging handicraft and vocational training courses, as well as projects that support women's groups. Child protection is important for Caritas Mali, and listening, training and support centres for children, as well as trade apprenticeship workshops, have been set up. There are six diocesan coordinating organisations: Kayes, Bamako, Sikasso, Ségou, San and Mopti. Each coordinating organisation joins forces with the services of the 44 parishes, in order to effectively implement programmes on the ground.

Caritas Mexico (CEPS) operates in a number of areas of pastoral care.

Caritas pastoral care: accompanies the diocesan Caritas, supports people with HIV/AIDS, promotes gender equality and helps in emergencies caused by natural disasters and social crisis situations.

Pastoral care of workers: in the interest that all human activities may be dignified and contribute towards social progress.

Pastoral care of indigenous peoples: training of indigenous peoples – most of whom come from states in southern and south-eastern Mexico – so that they can play key roles in their own integral development.

Pastoral care of prisoners: aimed at boosting the training of those deprived of their freedom and their families. In Mexico, 80 per cent of the prison population is under 30 years, with low incomes and little education.

Human mobility: responds to the situation of transit, destination, deportation and trafficking of emigrants and immigrants from an overall perspective, by seeking to deal with the causes in order to reduce migration flows and exploitation of human beings.

One of the main intervention areas of Caritas Nepal is to promote sustainable agriculture to enable small farmer households to realise food security and sustainable livelihoods, as about two thirds of the population is dependent on agriculture for livelihood. Collaborating with Caritas Australia, they implemented a national campaign, “IPM Program for Small Farmers”, in 24 districts of Nepal to distribute seeds, promote the use of vermin-composting and animal waste for organic fertilizers, and advocate for small farmers to improve their household food security, incomes, and farming sustainability.

In addition, Caritas Nepal instituted a national programme on prevention of trafficking and HIV/AIDS, through measures such as awareness-raising sessions, a radio programme and street drama. Smaller projects, often carried out through partner agencies, include skills development, savings and credit programmes, and education programmes for children displaced by the war.

Consists of eight diocesan Caritas: Managua, Vicariate of Bluefields, Juigalpa, Matagalpa, León, Estelí, Jinotega and Granada.

Caritas Nicaragua builds capacity within the Church's social services. It works in hospitals, shelters and homes for abandoned children, combats human trafficking, especially cases involving children and adolescents.

Work is focused on migration and the defence of migrants' employment rights, and prevention and support projects are implemented on behalf of female victims of violence.

Seeds, tools and training are supplied to families with scarce resources so that they can grow foods. Support is primarily aimed at the people who live in the dry parts of the country where it is very difficult to produce food.

Other poverty initiatives include promotion of small businesses and microloans, organic agriculture capacity building, and crop diversification and environmental protection.

Caritas Peru has a network of 48 diocesan Caritas and concentrates its efforts in programmatic areas, including:

Promotion of integral social development: improvement of the nutrition and health conditions of families, with special attention paid to mothers and infants under three years of age; implementation of protection actions and social inclusions programmes on behalf of vulnerable groups affected by poverty, the disabled and the elderly; and promotion of high-quality education via literacy, rural education and technical training programmes, among others.

Productive economic development: via promotion of production activities and production chains, encouragement of sustainable entrepreneurship, and building capacities and skills, as well as development of local markets, agricultural diversification and partnership.

Emergencies: through raising people's awareness and permanent contact with government authorities in order to identify areas of risk and thus prevent, mitigate and respond to disasters that occur at national level. At the same time, Caritas organises and coordinates solidarity campaigns to deal with emergencies, and is active in the reconstruction process via micro-loans and legal advice, among other things.

Caritas Rwanda

B. P.: 124 Kigali

Tel: +250 252 574 295

Caritas Rwanda has been mandated by the Rwandan Bishops' Conference to coordinate all the actions carried out by the Church regarding social assistance, healthcare and development. However, as a priority the activities of Caritas should be carried out by Catholic faithful at the basic ecclesial community level. Only if these communities are unable to resolve identified problems should the higher levels of Caritas be called on to act. The national Caritas network is active and operational even in the most remote parts of Rwanda via its approximately 390,000 volunteers.

At local level, the Rwandan government is Caritas Rwanda's main partner via the Ministry of Agriculture, the Ministry of Health and the Ministry of Local Government.
